MRS. BURNS IS ACQUITTED

Jury Frees Woman on Trial for Ten Days for Murdering Husband.---Jury Out
Three Hours and Took Three Ballots.--Insanity Not Considered

"Not Guilty" was the verdict handed down at 8:34 Thursday evening by the jury which has been sitting in the trial of Mary Augusta Burns, charged with the murder of her husband, Frank A. at Nottingham on Dec. 22, 1914. Mrs. Burns collapsed as Foreman of the jury Benjamin Stackhouse pronounced the words which made her free, making an outcry and falling to the floor. She recovered herself in a few moments, although she was in tears for many minutes after leaving the court and was sitting in the office of the jail surrounded by her mother, brothers and sisters.

Granted Interview to Papers

Mrs. Burns was taken from the jail in a carriage to the Kearsage House where she spent the night with her family, the first night she has slept in a bed since Dec. 27, 1914 not under guard or lock and key. She was visited by the newspaper representatives and granted them an interview.

Mrs. Burns said that it was the happiest Thanksgiving she had ever had. She said that she would go down on her knees and thank God for his forgiveness of her friends and enemies alike before she went to sleep. She said that she felt that she would never be able to thank Mrs. Shaw sufficiently for all her kindnesses to her while at the County Jail. She expressed her gratitude to Col. John H. Barrett in the highest terms and in conclusion she thanked the newspapers for the fair treatment of her case from its start to its close.

Mrs. Burns stated that she would never live in Nottingham again, although she was going there today to visit her sister, Mrs. Fred Gove and Mrs. Harry Davis for a few days and will then go to her mother's at Madbury. She said that she would later make her home at her brother's Ralph E. Davis, 20 Milk street, Readville, Mass.

Ten for Acquittal

The case went into the hands of the jury at 5:53 and a ballot was taken as soon as they retired. The first ballot resulted as follows: 10, not guilty, 1 guilty, 1 blank.

The jurors went to supper and returned at 7:00 o'clock, when another ballot was taken, resulting in 11 votes for acquittal and one for conviction. The case was then discussed by the jurors for more than an hour. It was learned that the condition of insanity was not considered although that of murder in the second degree was discussed informally. On the third verdict, taken at 8:20 o'clock, the jurors agreed unanimously for acquittal.

To those sitting in the court room in the evening the knock on the jury door at 8:23 came as a distinct shock.

Chief Justice Pike was notified that the jury was ready to report, although there was some slight feeling that they might be demanding further instruction. Sheriff John Cream announced that the foreman was ready with his verdict and Mrs. Burns was sent for.

Near Collapse

Mrs. Burns was brought into the court room at 8:30 o'clock, supported by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur B. Shaw. Just before entering the room, she was heard to sob for a few moments and as she walked to her place she was absolutely colorless.

Chief Justice Pike took his place on the bench as soon as Mrs. Burns entered the court and the jury was ad-

(Special to The Herald)

Rome, Nov. 26.—Italian guns mounted upon the captured positions of Monte Michele are battering to pieces the defenses of Gorizia. The successes won by the forces of General Cadorna in the last three days are declared by Italian military experts to have rendered untenable several of the main forts defending Gorizia, and they predict that the Austrians will be forced to evacuate the entire Isonzo front within 48 hours. Unofficial reports from Milan are that Gorizia has been captured. The war office today said that these reports were premature. A general feeling of elation was apparent in official circles however, and this was taken as an understanding of an announcement within a short time.

Breezy Items from the Village Across the River.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Elsie Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. H. Peterson of South Portland to Mr. J. Harold Chick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Chick of Kittery Junction occurred at 4 o'clock, Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 100 Ocean street, South Portland.

Rev. Henry Clark officiated, the double ring service being used. The ceremony was witnessed by relatives of the contracting parties and a few close friends. The room was prettily decorated in pink and green with a white wedding bell suspended from an arch of green foliage and the stairs were banked with boughs and flowers.

The bride was handsomely attired in a beautiful travelling suit of blue serge with beaver trimmings and hat of black velvet with blue ostrich plume and pink roses. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid was Miss Edna Peterson, sister of the bride, who was dressed in a dainty gown of pink silk taffeta and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Karl B. Chick, brother of the groom, officiated as best man.

The ring bearer was Miss Virginia Dudley, cousin of the bride, who wore white silk muslin over lace, with pink sash. Messrs. Everett Peterson, and Ralph Cole acted as ushers. The Lutheran wedding march was played by Miss Elvira Cummings.

Among the out of town guests present at the ceremony were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Chick, Mr. Karl B. Chick of Kittery, Miss Lulu Fernald of Ellot, Mrs. B. Burnham of Dover, and Miss Yvonne Geaver of Pittsfield, Me.

Many beautiful and costly wedding gifts were received including linen, cut glass and silverware.

Thursday evening proved to be a real letter event in the annals of the Y. M. C. A., now being formed in this town under the direction of York County Secretary C. F. Hosmer of Kennebunk. might be more pleasantly passed by those who were unable to reach their homes, and give them an opportunity to meet out townspeople. The dining-room of this hostelry was filled to overflowing with the guests and all did full justice to the bountiful spread set before them, which consisted of "turkey and all the fixins." After dinner speeches were made by Messrs. Hosmer, Forgrave, Bennett, Yeomans, Wasgatt, Baker and Cole. Another chapter in the robbery of the Eliot postoffice last summer when many dollars worth of stamps and a sum of money belonging to T. D. Merlin Dor is 13 years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dor of Kittery Point.

"FUN IN A PAWN SHOP" BETTER THAN MCGOWAN'S TROUBLES

Ted Steel says that a good laugh is better than a slow grin, and his offering last evening at the Portsmouth Theatre, "Fun in a Pawn Shop" is funnier than the McGowan's Trouble by far and the songs and dances have all been changed to give added interest. There is nothing except the performers in the half of the week's offering, to remind one of the first show. The costumes have all been changed, special choruses introduced and the comedy is full of swift action. There is forty-five minutes of the swiftest kind of action, coupled with the best in the line of good comedy, good dancing and good music. The cast:

mitted at 8.31. Clerk of the court Charles H. Knight called the roll and each member of the jury Deputy Sheriff Cram checked them off.

"Have you arrived at a verdict, Mr. Foreman?" asked Clerk Knight.

"We have," replied Foreman Stackhouse.

"What is your verdict?"

"Not guilty."

Judge Pike asked the jury if the verdict was not guilty without reference to insanity and was answered in the affirmative. Judge Pike thanked the jury for their forbearance and patience they had shown during the trial and the manner in which they had concluded their duties. He then discharged them.

Argument Presented

The argument of the case by Col. Bartlett was started at 10.55 and was concluded at 1.15 o'clock. After the recess at 2.30 Attorney Tuttle made his argument to the jury for the state, concluding at 4.45 o'clock. Justice Pike occupied 40 minutes in his charge and the case went to the jury at 5.30.

The Morning Session

When the session opened Mrs. Elmira DeMerritt of Nottingham was recalled and identified a box of bottles as having been taken from her house by Sheriff Ceylon Spinnay several weeks ago. She testified that three dozen or more bottles were the property of Mrs. Burns.

She was cross examined to some extent by Col. Bartlett and stated that they had been brought to her house while Mrs. Burns was living at the Webb's. She stated that one bottle, which contained cyanide, was in with the others when they were brought there and that she had not taken any precaution to prevent her two children from getting it as she felt certain that they wouldn't touch anything which didn't belong to them.

Mrs. Aurilla Davis, mother of Mrs. Burns, was recalled in rebuttal and identified a letter from her husband but said that it was not the one she referred to in her testimony of the day before as that written to her on the day of his death. The letter was read to the jury by Judge Gupilli, a pathetic appeal to his wife to return to him and forgive him for his unkindnesses to her.

Mrs. Alice B. Shaw was recalled but did not testify as the counsel for the defense stated they would admit the sickness of Sheriff Spinnay without examination of the witness.

Argument for Defense

At 10.55 Col. John H. Bartlett started his argument for the defense to the jury. He spoke of the great responsibility resting on them, the deciding of the life or death of the respondent. He spoke of the seriousness of the case, that they must decide if Mrs. Burns was to hang or not.

At the mention of the word "hang" Mrs. Burns shuddered and showed signs of a collapse, but soon recovered herself.

Had Failed to Show Motive

Col. Bartlett said that the state had failed to show any motive for the murder of Burns by Mrs. Burns. He said that their attempt to show a misin marriage relations was not material to the case. He said that they had failed to show that Mrs. Burns had ever shown any desire to take the life of Burns. On the other hand, he pointed out, Burns was so necessary to Mrs. Burns that everyone said that she was crazy, foolish, silly, in love with him and that she never knew until after his death that she was not his legal wife.

He spoke of the letter submitted to the jury as coming to Mrs. Cora Burns. That it had an uncancelled postage stamp on the envelope no Concord mail stamp and that it was unsigned.

Col. Bartlett spent considerable time in his attack on the testimony offered by Myra DeMerritt pointing out to the jury her unfriendliness to the other members of the family, her telling her mother and brothers to stay away from Mary and her willingness to testify for the state. He called attention to the fact that she repeatedly "couldn't remember" many things which were essential for telling of two places where she asserted that Mary had made the threat to "kill Burns" and that she was the only one out of 70 witnesses who testified that Mary was not crazy in love with Burns. Col. Bartlett called attention to the fact that 18 of 20 witnesses called from Nottingham had testified that Mrs. Burns was not rational in their opinion. He laid great stress on her love for her husband, spoke at length of the testimony of the expert witnesses as to the actions of persons afflicted with periodic insanity and that these acts were those testified to by most of those called to the stand.

He said that the state's case "exploded" when evidence was introduced to show that Mrs. Burns had called for the team from Raymond to take her to the train on Monday afternoon and not on Tuesday as held by the state in order to make her escape. He called attention to the fact that the picture of her father's body hanging in the barn was constantly on her mind and that the way in which her favorite sister, Emma, had taken her life had never been forgotten. He recited the events of Burns' death, the way she had behaved on that day, her actions at the funeral and the manner in which she had acted during the early part of her confinement in the jail.

Col. Bartlett said in conclusion that he asked the jury for a verdict on the fact that the state had shown no grounds for the committing of murder and that they had failed utterly to prove their case.

State's Argument

After the noon recess Attorney General Tuttle opened his argument for the state. He was repeatedly interrupted by objections and exceptions by Col. Bartlett who charged that he was over stating facts and drawing conclusions that were not substantiated by evidence.

General Tuttle said in part that the motive for the crime was jealousy and called attention to the number of witnesses who had testified to the jealous nature of the respondent. That she had said that she wouldn't live without Burns but that she was afraid of losing him and was therefore determined to kill him in order to prevent any other woman possessing him.

He said that her attempt at suicide were not real, that many women who were losing their hold on a man might make such a move as to attempt suicide and thus win him back again. That if she had intended suicide she had time enough between Saturday, when she purchased the poison and Tuesday morning when she gave it to Burns.

That the failure to find either the poison bottle or the bottle which had contained the liquor and poison mixture, was not found as she had probably destroyed them by smashing them against a wall on her way to phone for the doctor, which in itself, was merely the cunning of a murderer in an attempt at concealment of the crime.

He said that the purchase of the poison under an assumed name was also to be taken as an attempt at concealment.

He also stated that Mrs. Burns had not told of her purchase of the poison for purposes of suicide until after she had known that his death had been due to cyanide of potassium and that it was known that she had purchased it. This was objected to by Col. Bartlett on the grounds that evidence tended to show that Mrs. Burns had repeated to Mrs. Shaw that she had purchased the poison before she was identified by the Manchester druggist.

The Charge

Chief Justice Pike made his charge to the jury after a short recess had been taken. He stated that the jurors must find their verdict on the evidence presented and not on the arguments. He pointed out the different classes of the crime, defining first and second degree murder, first and second degree manslaughter and murder committed by an insane person. In this case, he said that they must find Mrs. Burns guilty of murder in the first degree if they believed that she had premeditated and intended his death by the poison she had purchased.

That if she was insane she was not to be convicted without the addition of the insanity clause, he said.

During the arguments Mrs. Burns had one collapse and at several times she and her family were weeping, especially when the mention of hanging was made.

A Summary

Mrs. Burns was arrested at Nottingham on Dec. 27, 1914 and brought to Portsmouth. She was arraigned at Raymond before Judge John T. Bartlett, charged with murder in the first degree of her husband Frank at Nottingham on Dec. 22, 1914 by putting cyanide of potassium in his liquor, and was held without bail for the grand jury at Exeter, which in turn indicted her and held her for trial in the Superior court at the October term.

In June she was taken to the New Hampshire State Hospital at Concord for observation as to her sanity and remained there for about four months when she was declared sane and returned to Portsmouth for trial.

Her trial opened on Monday, Nov. 15 and has been in continuous session since with the exception of Sunday. The state's case was presented by Attorney General James P. Tuttle of Manchester, County Solicitor Albert R. Hatch and special counsel Judge Ernest L. Gupilli.

The defense were represented by Col. John H. Bartlett, John L. Mitchell and Ralph C. Gray, all of this city.

THE JOYFUL BOB OTT

Will Play at Portsmouth Theatre
"Yours Truly" on Next Monday,
Matinee and Night.

"Yours Truly" is a musical thing-a-ling that is filled with uproarious laughter. It is the work of Matthew Ott, who wrote "Seven Hours in New York," "The Movie Girl," Dan Cupid and numerous other musical comedy successes. Unlike most musical plays, Mr. Ott has written all the lyrics and music-lyric and music that fit the situations. The numbers are all original, at the same time, timely.

"Yours Truly" contains a story that the audience is able to follow. The play likewise contains innovations; in fact, the author has disregarded all musical comedy traditions, and attempted something new. The story contains the idea of romance at the first glance. Stanton Penton has just married Edith Harcourt. Directly after the marriage, Edith confesses that she only married him for his money. The honeymoon is ended, both the bride and groom returning home. Penton pretends that he has lost his fortune. Edith, realizing that she has been in the wrong, decides to stand by him, and help him recover his fortune, etc. The play merges from farce to romance. She learns to love him. It is a simple story, but very sweet and pretty. The numbers are within keeping.

You must hear "Circus Day in Dixie," "Birth of a Nation," "Mother May I Go Into Swim," "Dream of the Dreamer," "When I Leave the World Behind," etc.

Many of the newboys of the city will be the guests of the Salvation Army Thanksgiving dinner today.

The Tax Rate.

At this time of the year, perhaps more than at any other, the tax rate is a subject of lively interest in most cities and towns. The annual payments have been or are being made by the tax payers, and in the average community there is a shout that taxes are too high. This may be partly due to habit, for there are those who always growl about the tax rate, whatever it is, and yet it cannot be denied that in most places taxes have been on the ascending scale in recent years and that in many cities and towns they are higher than they ought to be.

The question at once arises, who is to blame? And when the situation is subjected to analysis it will be found, as this paper has contended on more than one occasion, that it is the tax payers themselves. It is not the county and state taxes, on which the assessors never fail to lay emphasis when there is grumbling about the rate, that really cause the hardship, but the taxes resulting from appropriations made by the voters themselves in towns, and their representatives in city governments.

This is well illustrated by an eastern town which is shocked by the year's tax rate. The town has a board of trade and a tax payers' association which have done their best in the interest of the community, and still the tax rate has continued to climb. There is now to be renewed effort to check the drift in the wrong direction, and the first step will be to impress upon the minds of the voters, if possible, the "direct connection" between the appropriations and the tax rate. "No citizen," says a writer in discussing the situation, "is so dull that he does not know that appropriations mean taxes, but few citizens will refrain from urging the particular improvements in which they are most interested."

That is the sum and substance of the matter in a nutshell. When the appropriations are being made there is a shout for this improvement and that improvement. The voters are in the mood of the person who buys on credit. They see only the goods and overlook the size of the bills they are contracting; and when the bills are presented there is unwarranted surprise and dissatisfaction.

Tax payers should learn to count the cost, unpopular as this practice is at the present time, and to insist upon keeping the appropriations down to what they can afford. Until this is done there can be no escape for troublesome conditions, with the responsibility resting squarely upon the shoulders of the tax payers themselves.

Italy can give the United States odds in dealing with a murder case. Porter Charlton, an American, who murdered his wife in that country and did not deny it, was recently convicted of "unintentional" murder and sentenced to six years' imprisonment. He was released in 29 days, the authorities having allowed for the time he was "in restraint" before his trial and throwing off one year under "amnesty." It would almost appear that if he had been kept in jail a little longer before his trial he would have had a case against the government.

The value of radium in the treatment of cancer may not have been definitely determined, but it is used for that purpose and there will be satisfaction in the announcement that the government has reduced the cost of its production to less than one third of what it formerly was. But this does not make it cheap. It is still worth $37,000 per gram.

A prominent woman speaking before a gathering of alumnae in New York the other day startled her hearers by saying she was "always ready to tell a lie in a good cause." The consensus of opinion will be that it is bad enough to practice this sort of thing without preaching it.

Dallas, Texas, is ready to "put up" $100,000 to secure the Democratic national convention next year. But there are numerous other cities where there will be no lack of money for the same purpose, and there will also be liberal bids for the Republican gathering.

The liquor traffic is also being curtailed in Mexico, all of which emphasizes the truth of the old saying, "There is no great loss without some small gain." But such conditions as obtain in Mexico and the Old World are an awful price to pay for the promotion of temperance.

Yale evidently likes to fill its chairs with presidents. It lost no time in securing a former president of the United States, and now it calls in the head of Dartmouth college.

There is nothing surprising in the announcement that several steel companies are preparing for material enlargements. Steel is steel just now.

CURRENT OPINION

Refusal to Trade With Belligerents Would Stimulate Armaments.

We are neutral in the great war that is now devastating Europe. Following the universally admitted and clearly established rule of international law, we have held ourselves ready to sell supplies, food, war equipment and ammunition to any nation desiring to buy, and our business has temporarily and feverishly been stimulated by the demand from one side. The other side is unable to transport such supplies.

The mere profit of the business might not be a sufficient moral justification for carrying it on, although such a motive has always been regarded under such conditions as a lawful one, but we are vitally interested in maintaining the doctrine that belligerents may buy war supplies from neutrals.

Such a rule is absolutely essential to the safety of those nations which will never be in a state of preparedness for war—when war comes. We are one of that class of nations. For us to yield to the demand and establish a precedent that neutrals may not trade with belligerents in war supplies would put us at a serious disadvantage with any opponent whose war preparations were complete.

Such a document would stimulate greater armaments and war preparations in time of peace than ever, and certainly this is not to be regarded as desirable.—By Former President William H. Taft.

Isles of Shoals Coast Guards Remembered by Prof. Clark Smith.

Although ten miles out to sea the members of the Isles of Shoals coast guard were not forgotten and enjoyed a most appetizing turkey dinner, with all the fixings, the gift of Prof. Clark Smith of St. Luke's school, Wayne, Penn. DEAD MONEY—A TALK TO STOREKEEPERS

Every article you have on your shelves which does not sell represents dead money. It is not earning anything. It is taking up room. It is growing less in value as it gets older. It does not sell because people do not want it. It may be a good article but they do not know it or believe in it. People do know about the goods being advertised in their newspapers. If these are good goods they will want them. It pays the retailer to co-operate with newspaper advertised products, to show them in the windows, and to push them.

STATIONS TO BE ARMED

Machine Guns and Rifles for Coast Guard.

A machine gun at every coast guard life saving station on the Atlantic coast and rifles in the hands of the member of the crew is the latest plan that has been advanced to guard the shores of the United States from any possible attack by a hostile fleet.

This plan is now being advocated, and particular attention is being given to the Maine coast because it is the most eastern section of the nation. A few years ago such a comprehensive plan would not have been possible. Recently however, the life saving stations which were formerly a part of the treasury department, have been organized as a part of the coast guard and are under control of the army. Not only will the men be able to retire on part pay but they will receive better pay in the service than they have.

By this rather radical change it is now possible for the army or navy either to use the men at the coast guard stations, as a guard against an enemy attempting to land on the coast.

In Maine there are ten stations that would thus be equipped with machine guns and rifles, and nearly 100 men would be on duty. On the whole Atlantic coast 2,000 men would be used for the service.

With the men at the coast guard stations constantly on the watch, it is argued that an enemy's fleet could be discerned many miles from shore. Any attempt at landing could easily be repelled by a machine gun unless there was shell fire, and the men, because of their familiarity with the ground, would be able to avoid any danger of this. Should a hostile fleet be sighted at any one of the stations, the alarm could at once be spread by telephone so that further help would be provided to re-inforce the men at the stations.

Already motor boats are being provided for the life savers, and these it is planned would be supplemented with still faster boats for patrol duty so that should aeroplanes also be provided then there would be a system of watchers and protectors that could not be surpassed.

HOUSE FILLED FROM THE PIT TO THE ROOF

RECORD BREAKING AUDIENCE ATTENDED FINE SHOW LAST EVENING AT THE COLONIAL THEATRE.

One of the biggest audiences in the history of the house crammed the Colonial Theatre last evening and was entertained by one of the best vaudeville and picture programs that the management has presented. The big musical dancing act, "The Six Musical Misses" was given one big ovation. Their offering, violin playing and dancing combined, was a distinct novelty and captured the fancy of those present. The act came here direct from New York, not that that makes it great, perhaps, but it is great, whether it came from New York or not. It is one of the acts which compel you to want to see and hear again.

Niblo's talking bird act with his twelve roosters, also scored heavily. This offering is one of the most wonderful vaudeville acts now playing. In it an act which cannot fail to be of interest to the children and it is a bigger and better than any similar act.

Ryan and Riggs played as big favorites in their comedy singing and talking act. Both performers are good vocalists and their repertoire was clever and new.

The entire show, including the picture program, pleased the audience, there being no weak point in the bill that could be discovered by the most biased critic.

Berlin Declares that Only Part of Country is in Control of Allies

Berlin, Nov. 24.—With the capture of Mitrovitz and Prishtina, announced by the War Office today, virtually the entire area of the historic Vale of Kosovo is now commanded by Austrian and German troops sweeping down from the north and east. As Field Marshal von Mackensen's armies are now within a few miles of the Albanian and Montenegrin front, virtually all that remains of Serbia is the small, unoccupied corner about Monastir. Not a foot of Kosova remains in possession of King Nicholas of Montenegro.

German Official Report

"Mitrovitz has been taken by Austro-Hungarian troops," the official Berlin from the War Office says. "Prishtina has been taken by German troops. The Serbs have been driven over the Stitica River, west of Prishtina." (Mitrovitz is at the northern end of the Vale of Kosovo, which is divided by the Stitica River. It was the capital of Serbia after Nish was abandoned. It is about fifty miles north of Kotehanika Pass. Prishtina is about twenty-five miles south of Mitrovitz on the east side of the valley).

Tonight's official statement from Vienna says the Austro-Hungarian troops in the Sanjak of Novibazar have crossed the Lina River near Priboj close to the Bosnian frontier, and south of Novibazar other troops are advancing toward the Montenegrin frontier.

"Austro-Hungarian troops entered Mitrovitz," the report says, capturing ing 700 men, among them four officers. Prishtina was also taken. A German column penetrated the town from the north and the Bulgarians followed from the east."

Urges Allies to Withdraw
"Luclano Magrini, the Italian war correspondent," says the Overseas News Agency today, telegraphing from Monastir, recommends that the Entente allies give up their Balkan campaign as lost. He speaks of the universal indignation of the Serbians against the Entente powers."

A despatch from Sofia to the Berliner Zeitung says King Peter of Serbia has accepted an invitation from King Nicholas of Montenegro to become his guest at Cetinje, and that he will be accompanied either by the Serbian Ministers.

A renewed report is current here that the Russians have an army of 350,000 men ready for operations in the Balkans. The rumor does not specify the manner in which they will be employed or the point at which they will strike.

GIRLS! TRY IT!
HAVE THICK, WAVY
BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Every particle of dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Dandierine hair cream." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Dandierine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Desires beautifying the hair at once, Dandierine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandierine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

Save your hair! Beautify it! You will say this was the best 25 cents you ever spent.

DOCTORS CONFLICT OVER SAVING BABY BORN TO SUFFER

New York, Nov. 25.—"I have told the doctors to go ahead and do whatever they think is best to save my baby's life. But I still think it would have been better if she had died at birth. I wish she had."

So said Joseph E. Roberts of No. 153 East Seventy-second street, a newspaper man last night. Mr. Roberts and taken his crippled and doctored baby to the Babies' Hospital soon after her birth Tuesday night. His wish to have the attending physicians let her die was printed in the newspapers yesterday morning.

Roberts, who is engineer of a large business building and superintendent of the apartment house in which he lives, looked worn and tired. His face was drawn and there were dark circles around his eyes.

"The baby was practically dead when she was born," he continued. "The doctors had to work over her a long time. When children are crippled like that I think it's better to let them die—better than to let them live for years in suffering and then die. Just think how a little girl like that would feel watching other children play?"

Shortly before Roberts was found at his home Dr. J. Emmett Holt, chief physician at the Babies' Hospital and a specialist in the diseases of children with an international reputation, had come from a consultation over the baby and had said to waiting reporters:

"This is a very ordinary case. We had eleven of them in the Babies' Hospital last year. We had thirteen in one year. It is nothing at all like the case in Chicago. There an operation would have saved a life. Here an operation is impossible—at least for four or five months."

"Is there any chance for this baby to grow up to be a useful human being?" was asked.

"No," was the reply. "If these children do live they equally develop water on the brain before they become more than six or seven years old. The brain, too, is usually affected in cases like this."

"Only a short time ago, however, there was one case discharged from the hospital as cured. It had not been operated on. I have seen one case which lived to be seven years old, and appeared to be all right."

Dr. Holt's diagnosis was diametrically opposed to the opinion of Dr. Maurice Rosenberg of No. 187 Seventh Avenue, visiting surgeon of the People's Hospital. Dr. Rosenberg was the surgeon called in by Dr. Julius Goldsmith of No. 2 East One Hundred and Fifteenth Street at the birth. He said to a reporter for The World:

"I worked more than an hour over the baby after her birth. The family became angry at me when they learned her condition because I hadn't let her die. But I take a different stand from that doctor in Chicago. I believe where there is life there is hope."

The correspondents of the Boston papers who have been covering the Burns trial returned to Boston this morning after their lengthy stay in this city. It is doubtful if any murder trial in New Hampshire in late years has received so much publicity.

About twenty-five of the dyed-in-the-wool sports of the city went to Quamphagan Park on Thanksgiving afternoon to witness the boxing matches advertised to take place. BURNS' TRIAL EXPENSIVE

Will Cost County Several Thousand Dollars—Pays All Bills for Defense.

The trial of Mrs. Mary A. Burns, which has taken ten days before the superior court here, will cost the county a good bit of money. Although the figures are not yet available, they will exceed $5000, and may be twice that figure.

The county not only has to pay for all of the state witnesses, but also for all of the defense, for Col. John H. Bartlett was appointed by the court as counsel for Mrs. Burns and he will receive his counsel fees from the county, and all of the expenses incurred in preparing the case.

This is the same with the state, who have in addition to the cost of preparation, all of the witnesses, including the experts, and the counsel fee of Judge Ernest L. Guptill as appeal counsel. Then there was the pay of the jury for eleven or twelve days, and their board and lodging as well as that of the guard.

Murder trials are costly at the best, and although this is not the most costly that has been heard in this county, it will be well up among the leaders.

CITY NEWS

Special Officer Coughlin of the Boston and Maine railroad has been doing duty in this city for the past week or more and has been patrolling the Portsmouth and Dover branch between Noble's Island and Freeman's Point to prevent track walking. During his period of duty here he experienced no trouble whatever, and reports that the people are complying with the rules and that the custom practiced for years by people taking a short cut, is no more. Since the move to stop the track walkers was taken up, foot traffic has greatly increased on Maplewood avenue and Cutts street.

HARRY LAUDER COMING.

Many persons, especially business men of serious attributes, when addressing communications to Harry Lauder on matters of commercial import, balk at his first name as slangy and frivolous, all right for stage purposes but unsuited to the atmosphere of "strictly business." Harry being his full-given, Christian and formal name, he renounce this. Recently upon receiving a communication from a bank addressed to "Harry Lauder," he wrote them as follows: "My name is Harry, not Henry. If you can't do business with me by my right name, don't do business with me at all." The answer was a humble, complete and unequivocal apology. And it was addressed "Mr. H. Lauder."
